FOREWORD

Foreword

Bronwyn Keighley-Gerardy

When the Freedom of Information Bill 1992 came before the Western Australian Parliament for debate, all political parties embraced its ideals of openness and accountability. After almost 8 years of government activity under FOI legislation, it is time to ask whether FOI is achieving the results intended by Parliament and, more importantly, the results wanted and expected by the public.

The public requires more than 'lip service' to be paid to freedom of information by Government. It requires a potent and robust access law that delivers results and works in favour of public access, rather than in favour of secrecy. It is a truism that bureaucracies around the world are not known as champions of FOI. Yet I have admiration and respect for some of the FOI coordinators in Western Australia who act as their departmental conscience for openness and accountability. Many of the coordinators have been in their positions from day one. As a group, they have maintained their enthusiasm for and commitment to FOI, sometimes in the face of hostile management and an organisational culture that is slow to change.

Since 1993, there have been 22 various Acts of the WA Parliament that have effected amendments to the Freedom of Information Act 1992 (the FOI Act). Some of the amendments involved cosmetic name changes only; others were more substantive and have had the effect of increasing the range of documents and information that could not be accessed under the FOI Act. Only one piece of legislation actually strengthened the FOI Act by including sub-contractors associated with the contracting-out of court security and custodial services within its purview.

Legislative and Administrative Changes

In each of my Annual Reports to Parliament since 1993, I have identified legislative changes that could be made to strengthen the rights of access in Western Australia and to help the objects of the Act to be achieved. A review of the FOI Act in 1996 also identified areas where legislative change was considered necessary. However, nothing has been done. There were signs following the change of government in February 2001 that accountability and FOI might be revitalised. However, it remains to be seen whether FOI will change for the better. I suspect that the legislative program of the government may be exploited by agencies seeking to either extend the range of documents and information that is inaccessible under the FOI Act, or the range of exempt agencies.

An example on point is the proposed Gene Technology Bill 2001, in which it was proposed to amend the FOI Act to include an additional exemption for confidential commercial information of a kind described in clause 187 of the proposed Bill. The effect of the proposed amendment would be to limit my role as Information Commissioner to merely confirming that the information in question is subject to a declaration made by the Commonwealth Gene Technology Regulator. Under that proposal there would be no independent review of a decision on access made by the agency concerned, or whether in fact the information sought is commercially sensitive.

Already I have become aware that the practice under the previous Government of Ministers requesting details from their departments about FOI applications, including the names of FOI applicants, may be continuing. Apart from those instances where a Minister has a legitimate "right to know", I remain convinced that the practice of disclosing the names of ordinary FOI applicants, without their knowledge or consent, is wrong and may breach accepted privacy principles.

The amendment of Clause 5(1)(b)

One exemption in particular puts Western Australia out of step with all other FOI jurisdictions throughout the world. The exemption for law enforcement documents is designed to ensure that current and unsolved investigations conducted by law enforcement agencies are not prejudiced by disclosures under FOI.

The approach taken in the WA FOI Act is that the exemption applies to documents that would reveal any investigation conducted by any agency involving a contravention or possible contravention of the law. A contravention of the law includes a breach of, or a failure to comply with regulations, as well as local government By-laws, Codes of Ethics and human resource management standards made under the Public Sector Management Act 1994.

The documents of law enforcement bodies are adequately protected under FOI legislation both nationally and internationally. However, the existence of the exemption in clause 5(1)(b) in its present form in WA, provides a convenient and ready justification for a myriad of agencies to hide behind a cloak of confidentiality, often without good reason. Based on the complaints made to me, discretionary disclosures (which may be made under s.3(3) of the FOI Act) of documents relating to investigations made by regulatory agencies are few and far between, even when the documents only relate directly to the applicant and there is no clear or readily apparent prospect of any harm or injury resulting from disclosure.

When applicants are denied access to documents resulting from complaints made by them to agencies, or they are denied access to investigative material relating to them, whether or not charges or disciplinary proceedings have resulted, it is inevitable that the FOI Act is viewed as a "toothless tiger". My impression is that applicants do not understand how or why the exemption in clause 5(1)(b) is applied by agencies to refuse access, and they do not accept the interpretation of that clause made by the Supreme Court in Western Australia.

The Member for Nollamara in Opposition proposed a remedy to this situation in a Private Member's Bill introduced to Parliament in 1998. However, that Bill was defeated along party lines in the Legislative Assembly. I remain hopeful that the enthusiasm for change exhibited then by the Member and his parliamentary colleagues has not been dimmed by the reality of being the Government.

In its present form, clause 5(1)(b) remains an anomaly that is unjustifiably broad in its application to documents and its continued presence remains a blight on the FOI landscape in Western Australia. If other Western Australian laws can be amended to bring this State into line with those in other States, then the FOI Act should likewise be amended in the critical areas of its exemption clauses to bring it into line with national and international FOI standards.

Agency FOI Report Cards

There are no FOI report cards on agencies in this report. I will resume the practice of examining the FOI practices of agencies next year, after the new departments have had a chance to consolidate access procedures and policies following the changes to the structure of the public sector made by the Machinery of Government Task Force.

The Operation of FOI

The number of applicants who used FOI to access information increased during the year by nearly 10% (Fig. 1). The rate of access has also increased. (Fig. 4). There has been a steady decrease in the days taken by agencies to deal with applications, falling to an average of around 17 days in 2000/01 (Fig. 2). At the same time, the average charge imposed by all agencies for giving access has remained more or less steady at around $15 per application (Fig. 3).

Overall, the majority of applications are for personal information but, as indicated in Figures 5 and 6, the impact on local government agencies shows the reverse. This no doubt reflects the level of community interest in local issues, as well as the fact that local authorities, compared to State Government agencies such as hospitals, hold less personal information. Applications for access to non-personal information are the type of request that hold State and local government agencies accountable for actions and decisions of broader significance to members of the public.

Who makes requests for access to non-personal information?

Generally, applicants fall into one of the following groups:

- Businesses or organizations
- Individuals
- Members of Parliament
- Media

In 2000/01, based on the ten agencies topping the list for non-personal requests (Fig. 7), the largest group of applicants comprised firms of solicitors, businesses and community groups, who made a total of 201 separate applications. The next largest are individuals who made a total of 151 separate applications to the top ten agencies.

The top ten agencies only received 17 applications from Members of Parliament and only 2 from the media. However, across all agencies, Members of Parliament accounted for 85 requests and the media for 17.

What kinds of documents are being requested?

Applicants are using the FOI Act to seek access to a variety of non-personal information including accident reports and workers compensation claims; planning documents; fire investigation reports; documents relating to land clearing, the environment and site contamination; land valuation reports; tenders and contracts; and those associated with neighbourhood disputes. Very few of these types of requests have resulted in complaints to me for external review.

The operation of my office

There has been a decrease in complaints to my office, especially in the second half of the year under review, which I largely attribute to the change of Government following the State Election in February 2001. Applicants who make repeated requests to agencies, followed by complaints to my office (serial applicants) continue to create resource problems for agencies. It is not always easy for agencies to find the right balance between allowing an applicant to exercise his or her rights under the FOI Act and the practicalities of dealing with their obsessive and futile applications for access to documents.

My office is faced with a budget cut for the year 2001/02 of $76,000, rising in the following 3 years to $98,000. If the number of complaints does not increase markedly in the next and following years, I am able to cope with this decrease through restructuring in the office and by streamlining our complaint procedures. There is no longer a need for me to finalise all complaints by publishing my reasons in full, because many of the FOI principles have been covered in previous decisions. In the future, wherever possible, I intend to finalise complaints by letters between the parties. I will publish my reasons in note form only, where a complaint involves no new principles of law or of access.

I wish to express my appreciation to the dedicated team in my office who have largely contributed to the completion of another successful year.

REPORT ON OPERATIONS

LEGISLATION AND MISSION STATEMENT

The position of Information Commissioner is constituted under s.55(1) of the Freedom of Information Act 1992 and the occupant is directly accountable to Parliament for the performance of statutory functions prescribed by the Act. I was appointed on 1 July 1993 and reappointed on 31 October 2000. The Attorney General is the Minister responsible for the legislation.

The main function of the position is to provide independent external review of agency decisions by dealing with complaints about decisions made by agencies under the Act. Other responsibilities, as prescribed by the Act, include:

- (i) ensuring that agencies are aware of their responsibilities under the Act [s.63(2)(d)];
- (ii) ensuring members of the public are aware of the Act and their rights under it [s.63(2)(e)];
- (iii) providing assistance to members of the public and agencies on matters relevant to the Act [s.63(2)(f)]; and
- (iv) recommending to Parliament legislative or administrative changes that could be made to help the objects of the Act be achieved [s.111(4)].

The Mission Statement and desired outcome reflect the functions and the broad ideals of openness, accountability and responsibility behind the FOI legislation.

MISSION

Public understanding and confidence in the decision-making process of government agencies through access to relevant information.

DESIRED OUTCOME

Access to documents and observance of processes in accordance with the Freedom of Information Act 1992.

The Office of the Information Commissioner provides an FOI complaint mechanism and advisory service which is independent, objective and fair, and which balances the competing needs of applicants, agencies and Parliament, subject to the requirements and processes prescribed in the Act. The Information Commissioner has a statutory duty to undertake these functions and the office accordingly has two outputs – Resolution of Complaints (External Review) and Advice and Awareness.

The following principles or values are part of the corporate philosophy of the office.

- Being accepted by participants as an independent and impartial review authority.
- Being recognised by agencies as a model of "best practice" for the FOI complaint review process.
- Serving as an example to agencies of accountability and responsibility.

STAFF

Staff are appointed to assist me and new appointees must take an oath or affirmation, administered by me, prior to commencing their duties. The office is structured based on two separate outputs, which ensures that the independence and integrity of the external review process is maintained.

EXTERNAL REVIEW

The external review output deals with complaints lodged by access applicants and third parties against decisions made by agencies and certain other applications. It emphasises informal resolution processes such as negotiation and conciliation where appropriate, and includes determinative functions which may involve more formal processes. The review function is designed to be as speedy, accessible and informal as possible. A policy decision was made to avoid adopting too legalistic or technical an approach to external review, but at the same time, recognising that it is necessary and desirable to conform with statutory requirements, the principles of administrative law and acceptable standards of practice for merit review.

EXTERNAL REVIEW APPLICATIONS

A total of 165 applications for external review were received in 2000/2001 (279 in 1999/2000). Table 1 indicates the kinds of applications received.

- by agencies for waiver of the requirement to consult with third parties when processing an application, pursuant to section 35;
- by agencies for extension, or by access applicants for reduction, of the permitted period of 45 days within which an agency must deal with an application (s.13(4) and s.13(5)); and
- by agencies for Commissioner's certification to obliterate or remove information or to destroy a document, pursuant to section 48(3).

A detailed breakdown appears as Table 3.

Tables 5 and 6 show details of the outcomes of the matters dealt with during the year.

Of the 154 complaints dealt with, 61 were resolved by conciliation. A total of 58 complaints proceeded to a decision. Of those matters, the agency's decision was confirmed on 35 occasions; varied on 12 occasions; and set aside and substituted on 11 occasions.

In some cases, I will refer a complaint to Advice and Awareness staff in order that the parties may be advised further as to their respective rights and obligations under the Act, or to enable preliminary enquiries to be made. This procedure often leads to a successful resolution of the matters. There were 21 applications resolved in this manner.

Pursuant to section 67(1)(b) of the Act, I decided not to deal with 14 complaints on the ground that they were either misconceived or lacking in substance.

APPEALS TO THE SUPREME COURT

One appeal was filed with the Supreme Court during the year and determined by the Supreme Court of Western Australia in November 2000. In Minister for Transport v Edwards [2000] WASCA 349, the Supreme Court dismissed the Minister's appeal against my decision that the access provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 1992 applied to documents in the possession or under the control of the Minister. The Court upheld my decision that 3 documents which were in the possession of the Minister (being documents relating to Westrail's Sleeper Procurement Policy and Westrail's use of timber sleepers) copies of which had been annexed to a Cabinet Submission, were "documents of an agency" within the meaning of the FOI Act.

In addition, the Supreme Court of Western Australia dealt with a Case Stated for the opinion of the Court on a question of law. The matter arose from two applications for external review lodged with me against decisions made by the Ministry of Justice to refuse access to documents. I referred a question of law to the Supreme Court, pursuant to s.78 of the Freedom of Information Act 1992 and asked the Supreme Court to determine whether copies of certain documents which were held by the Ministry of Justice, but which originated from the Parole Board of Western Australia (an exempt agency) and which were under the control of the Parole Board were "documents in the possession or control" of the Ministry of Justice.

The Supreme Court determined that the degree of control which the Ministry was able to exercise over the documents, together with the Ministry's physical holding of the files on its premises were sufficient to constitute the documents as being documents in the possession of an agency for the purposes of clause 4(1) of the Glossary in Schedule 2 to the FOI Act. Information Commissioner for Western Australia v Ministry of Justice [2001] WASC 3.

There were two other appeals lodged during 1999/2000 on questions of law arising out of the following decisions by me:

Re Buddhist Society of WA (Inc) and Main Roads Department and BGC Contracting Pty Ltd [1999] WAICmr 38; the appeal was discontinued by the appellant (the third party, BGC Contracting Pty Ltd) during the year.

The University of Western Australia and Water Corporation [2000] WAICmr 31. As at 30 June 2001, this appeal had still not been listed for hearing by the Supreme Court.

ADVICE AND AWARENESS

The Advice and Awareness output is administered by the Executive Director by way of a formal delegation. Applicants and agencies are provided assistance in exercising their respective rights and obligations and follow the correct processes for dealing with an application under the FOI Act. Policy development within agencies is encouraged so that the obligations placed on agencies by the FOI Act minimise the impact on their day-to-day operations. Many potential disputes are resolved informally with assistance provided by this output.

The output undertakes functions on my behalf, as follows:

- training courses for agency staff;
- the development of targeted workshops/seminars;
- provision of assistance, briefings and advice to agencies on the processes required by the FOI Act;
- visits to country regions;
- visits to and meetings with agencies or applicants in order to assist in resolving difficulties being experienced in dealing with FOI requests;
- enquiries and requests for comment from the media;
- briefings to community groups;
- production of articles providing advice and guidance on the workings of the FOI Act;
- distribution of brochures to assist applicants;
- answering enquiries by e-mail, telephone or at the counter on a daily basis;
- dealing with general correspondence;
- maintenance of statistical data and other information to assist the Information Commissioner in reporting to Parliament; and
- executive support for me including matters relating to the management and funding of the office.

BRIEFINGS TO GOVERNMENT AGENCIES, COMMUNITY ORGANISATIONS AND OCCUPATIONAL GROUPS

The Office is proactive in raising the awareness and understanding of the procedures and processes prescribed by the FOI Act. Apart from requests received for training or assistance, needs in the public sector are identified from a survey of agencies. Due to staff turnover, there is a periodic need by agencies for new staff to be briefed on the FOI process and their obligations. This is done by conducting special forums, briefings, seminars, or presentations to FOI Coordinators and decision-makers. Proceedings are conducted on an informal and interactive basis allowing for immediate response to questions and clarification of issues concerning FOI procedures and practices. The office provides a speaker in response to an invitation from any organisation requiring an explanation of the FOI process.

"FOI Processes and Decision-making Requirements"

Regular seminars are conducted to assist staff in agencies who require a "revision course" to ensure their skills and knowledge of the FOI process are up to date and of a high standard. The first of this type of briefing was held on 14 February 2001, at the Town of Victoria Park and was attended by FOI Coordinators and decision-makers from local government agencies in the metropolitan area. The second briefing was conducted at the City of Mandurah on 20 February 2001, and officers from neighbouring councils also attended. On 15 March 2001, the third briefing was conducted at the Office of the Information Commissioner and this session targeted the needs of State government agencies rather than local government. A final briefing was held on 9 May 2001, at the Shire of Harvey for officers of local government agencies in the region. The content includes reference to relevant decisions and interpretations by the Information Commissioner. These briefings were well received and provided officers the opportunity to clarify any issues of concern in dealing with FOI requests, as well as establish personal contact with staff of the Commissioner's office who may be contacted for advice in the future.

Seminar on "Dealing With Large Applications"

On 4 April 2001, sixty FOI Coordinators and decisionmakers from various State and local government agencies attended a seminar presented by the Advice and Awareness staff on "Dealing with Large Applications", which covered available options, assisting applicants and procedures to be followed. Extensive detail was provided on the obligations placed on agencies to assist applicants as well as the process required to be followed should an agency eventually refuse to deal with an application.

This seminar provides vital detail on the recommended steps to follow so that large requests are not accepted, emphasising the need to liaise with applicants and agree on the scope of the documents which will meet the applicants needs. This ensures that agency resources are not diverted unnecessarily away from core business.

Joint Commonwealth and Western Australian FOI Practitioner's Forum

The forum was arranged in conjunction with Ms Madeline Campbell, Senior Government Solicitor, from the Australian Government Solicitor's Office. More than ninety officers from Commonwealth, State and local government agencies attended briefings by me and Ms Campbell on recent significant Federal and State Supreme Court decisions on FOI matters. The forum was well received as it gave the participants the opportunity to hear in detail the implications of those particular decisions.

During the year over 800 participants attended a wide range of briefings, seminars and presentations and these are listed in the table on the following page.

PUBLICATIONS AND USE OF ELECTRONIC FACILITIES

Our web site (http://www.foi.wa.gov.au) is a frequently used communication tool and a source of information on FOI. Documents provided on the web site include: the Freedom of Information Act 1992; Freedom of Information Regulations 1993, 1994; copies of published decisions; the Annual Report (PDF and HTML formats); presentations and speeches; brochures; articles giving guidance on FOI processes; and more.

E-mail is utilised extensively by the Office where possible and data such as annual statistics from agencies and responses from participants for surveys of satisfaction levels is also obtained through this medium where possible.

Hard copies of all publications are available and distributed on request.

(a) Since the commencement of the FOI Act surveys have been administered annually to all state and local government agencies. The trend has indicated a consistently high level of satisfaction with the advisory services provided by the office, so in order to reduce the burden on agencies the survey will now be conducted every 2 years.

ADMINISTRATION

The functions required of the Information Commissioner have resulted in the development and delivery of a range of services to the public, agencies and Parliament:

- dispute resolution
- advice about the FOI Act and procedures
- Copies of decisions made by the Information Commissioner
- access to agency Information Statements
- distribution of awareness raising and educational material
- talks and information sessions for community groups
- free call telephone line for country callers
- web site at http://www.foi.wa.gov.au
- telephone advisory service
- FOI training sessions
- specifically tailored meetings or advisory sessions for agencies
- advice and assistance to Members of Parliament and their electorate office staff regarding the FOI process
- Annual Report on the workings of the legislation

The Office has published its Customer Service Charter and Code of Conduct, which all staff are required to observe. Copies are available on request.

Performance Standards have been established to ensure that all staff undertake their duties in a manner that is a credit to the professional and independent status of the Office.

STAFF CHANGES

During the year there were two resignations; Ms D Wookey, Principal Solicitor left to take up a position as Assistant Ombudsman (W.A.), and Ms S Thomas moved to a position providing child care in the private sector.

SUPPORT SERVICES

Corporate service support, consisting of financial and human resources services including workplace safety, disability services, equal employment and language services when required, is provided by the Ministry of Justice under a service agreement. Due to the small size of the office, human resource reporting requirements are met by the Ministry. The assistance provided by relevant staff of the Ministry is acknowledged and appreciated.

COMPLIANCE WITH OTHER ACTS

The office complies with all legislative requirements and associated reporting requirements, including the Occupational Health Safety and Welfare Act 1984. No health or safety issues arose for attention and there were no lost time incidents or workers' compensation claims.

There was no expenditure incurred on advertising, market research polling, direct mail or media advertising activities during the year.

KEY PERFORMANCE INDICATORS

OFFICE OF THE INFORMATION COMMISSIONER CERTIFICATION OF PERFORMANCE INDICATORS

The performance indicators which follow have been prepared based on proper records and fairly represent the performance of the Office of the Information Commissioner for the year ended 30 June 2001.

B. Keighleg - Gerardy

B. KEIGHLEY-GERARDY INFORMATION COMMISSIONER 14 August 2001

KEY PERFORMANCE INDICATORS 2000/2001

- DESIRED OUTCOME: Access to documents and observance of processes in accordance with the Freedom of Information Act 1992 (the Act).
- DESCRIPTION: The Office of the Information Commissioner provides a freedom of information (FOI) complaint mechanism and advisory service which is independent, objective and fair; and which balances the competing needs of applicants, agencies and Parliament, subject to the requirements and processes prescribed in the Act. The Information Commissioner has a statutory duty to undertake these functions and the office accordingly has two outputs – Output 1: Resolution of Complaints and Output 2: Freedom of Information Advice and Awareness.

When dealing with disputes, the objective is to avoid being unduly legalistic or formal in the way proceedings are conducted, which is the intent of the legislation. The preferred outcome is to achieve resolution by way of conciliation between the parties. When conciliation cannot be achieved, the Information Commissioner is required to make a determination by publishing a written decision with reasons.

Advice and Awareness activities also emphasise the spirit of the legislation and, wherever possible, agencies are either encouraged to release information outside the FOI process or, where necessary, follow the correct processes for dealing with an application under the Act. Policy development within agencies is encouraged so that the obligations placed on agencies under the Act have minimal effect on their day-to-day operations. Many potential disputes are also resolved informally with assistance from the office.

Therefore, the performance indicators of the office reflect the satisfaction of parties who utilise the services of the office, show the extent to which conciliation is achieved and measure efficiency by relating workload to costs.

EFFECTIVENESS

		1997	1998	1999	2000	2001
Satisfaction of parties with the	Target	-	-	90%	88%	87%
external review process	Outcome	85%	88%	88%	86%	92%

A survey of all 240 participants in the external review process was administered and 60% (143) responded by returning a completed questionnaire. The survey is administered immediately following finalisation of each review. The indicator shows the level of satisfaction with the review process, including the professionalism of our staff; the extent to which feedback was provided as matters proceeded; and the extent to which parties were given the opportunity to have input. The survey seeks the participant's views on whether there was an independent, objective and fair hearing with an emphasis on user-friendly processes which met their needs. Relative Standard Error for 2001 data is $\pm 5.21\%$ at 95% level of satisfaction.

		1997	1998	1999	2000	2001
Satisfaction of agencies with advice and guidance provided	Target	-	-	100%	98%	98%
	Outcome	100%	97%	98%	98%	(a)

(a) Survey will now be conducted every 2 years.

There is a range of advisory services encompassing publications, advice on request, Internet based services, briefings and workshops and formal presentations to agencies. Since the commencement of the FOI Act, surveys have been administered annually to all state and local government agencies. The trend has indicated a consistently high level of satisfaction with the advisory services provided by the office, so in order to reduce the burden on agencies, the survey will now be conducted biennually.

	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001
The extent to which applications for external review were resolved by conciliation	72%	75%	80%	70%	61%

KEY PERFORMANCE INDICATORS continued

Conciliation is the Information Commissioner's preferred method of dispute resolution where possible, provided undue delay does not occur. This indicator shows the extent to which a conciliated outcome is achieved. The measure shows the percentage of cases where a complainant and other involved parties are satisfied with the conciliated result, and thus do not require a formal determination to be issued by the Information Commissioner. A conciliated outcome has the benefit of avoiding an unduly legalistic approach and minimises the number of formal decisions which are required to be prepared and published by the Information Commissioner, thus minimising costs. The variation in the conciliation rate reflects the increase in complexity of complaints being made to the Information Commissioner and the extent to which parties seek a formal ruling.

EFFICIENCY

Output I. Resolution of Complaints	Output 1:	Resolution	of Complaints
------------------------------------	-----------	------------	---------------

		1997	1998	1999	2000	2001
Average cost of external	Budget	-	-	$4605	$5044	$3552
reviews finalised	Actual	$3321	$4800	$4992	$3380	$5321

This reflects the costs incurred in resolving complaints, which is reported in more detail in the annual report and in the WA Government annual budget statements for the Consolidated Fund. The variation in the actual and budget average cost is due to a decline in the number of applications for external review received this year.

Output 2: Advice and Awareness Services
		1997	1998	1999	2000	2001
Average cost of advice and awareness per application lodged	Budget	-	-	$75	$86	$75
	Actual	$86	$81	$68	$71	$68

This indicator shows the average cost of advice and awareness services, for each application lodged with agencies across the public sector. Further detail about this output is also provided in the annual report and the published budget statements for the Consolidated Fund. The variation between the budgeted and actual figures can be attributed to both an increase in the number of applications received by agencies and the success of the Advice and Awareness sub-program in promoting FOI within the wider community.

Notes to the Financial Statements

for the year ended 30 June 2001

1 Office of the Information Commissioner mission and funding

The mission of the Office of the Information Commissioner ("the Office" for the purpose of these notes) is stated as follows:

To promote public understanding and confidence in the decision-making process of Government Agencies through access to relevant information.

In support of the mission statement, the following principles or values are part of the Corporate philosophy of the Office:

- Being accepted by participants as an independent and impartial review authority.
- Being recognised by agencies as a model of "best practice" for the Freedom of Information complaint review process.
- Serving as an example to agencies of accountability and responsibility.
- Providing optimal advisory services to the community and agencies as determined by our legislative mandate.

The Office is funded by Parliamentary appropriations. It does not provide services on a fee-for-service basis. The financial statements encompass all funds through which the Office controls resources to carry on its functions.

In the process of reporting on the Office as a single entity, all intra-entity transactions and balances have been eliminated.

2 Significant accounting policies

(a) General Statement

The financial statements constitute a general purpose financial report which has been prepared in accordance with Australian Accounting Standards and UIG Consensus Views as applied by the Treasurer's Instructions. Several of these are modified by the Treasurer's Instructions to vary the application, disclosure, format and wording. The Financial Administration and Audit Act and the Treasurer's Instructions are legislative provisions governing the preparation of financial statements and take precedence over Australian Accounting Standards and UIG Consensus Views. The modifications are intended to fulfil the requirements of general application to the public sector together with the need for greater disclosure and also satisfy accountability requirements.

If any such modification has a material or significant financial effect upon the reported results, details of that modification and where practicable, the resulting financial effect, is disclosed in individual notes to these financial statements.

(b) Basis of accounting

The financial statements have been prepared in accordance with Australian Accounting Standard AAS29.

The statements have been prepared on the accrual basis of accounting using historical cost accounting. Additions to non-current physical assets are stated at cost.

(c) Appropriations

Appropriations in the nature of revenue, whether recurrent or capital, are recognised as revenues in the period in which the Office gains control of the appropriated funds. The Office gains control of appropriated funds at the time those funds are deposited into the Office's bank account.

(d) Net Appropriation Determination

Pursuant to section 23A of the Financial Administration and Audit Act, the net appropriation determination by the Treasurer provides for retention of the moneys received by the Office for the executive motor vehicle scheme.

The monies received and retained are applied to the Office's outputs.

Notes to the Financial Statements

for the year ended 30 June 2001

(e) Operating accounts

Amounts appropriated are deposited into the account and any revenues which are the subject of net appropriation determinations are also deposited into the account. All payments of the Office are made from the operating account.

(f) Depreciation of non-current assets

All non-current assets having a limited useful life are systematically depreciated over their useful lives in a manner which reflects the consumption of their economic benefits.

The policy is to depreciate such assets if their purchase cost is $1,000 or more. Amounts with a lower value are expensed.

Depreciation is provided for on a straight line basis, using rates which are reviewed annually. Useful lives for each class of depreciable asset are:

Furniture – wood	10 years
Furniture – metal	15 years
Office equipment	2-5 years
Computer hardware	2 years
Computer software	2 years

Motor vehicles are not depreciated as they are leased via operating lease arrangements.

(g) Employee entitlements

The measurement of the liability is consistent with the requirements of Australian Accounting Standard AAS30 "Accounting for Employee Entitlements" and is comprised of the following elements:

Annual leave

This entitlement is recognised at current remuneration rates and is measured at the amount unpaid at the reporting date in respect to employees' service up to that date.

Long Service Leave

A liability for long service leave is recognised, and is measured as the present value of expected future payments to be made in respect of services provided by employees up to the reporting date. Consideration is given, when assessing expected future payments, to expected future wage and salary levels including relevant on costs, experience of employee departures and periods of service. Expected future payments are discounted using interest rates to obtain the estimated future cash outflows. The long service leave liability is based on a shorthand factor provided by an Actuary.

Superannuation

Staff may contribute to the Superannuation and Family Benefits Act Scheme, a defined benefits pension scheme now closed to new members, or the Gold State Superannuation Scheme, a defined benefit and lump sum scheme now also closed to new members. All staff who do not contribute to either of these schemes become non-contributory members of the West State Superannuation Scheme, an accumulation fund complying with the Commonwealth Government's Superannuation Guarantee (Administration) Act 1992.

The superannuation expense is comprised of the following elements:

- (i) change in the unfunded employers liability in respect of current employees who are members of the Superannuation and Family Benefits Act Scheme and current employees who accrued a benefit on transfer from that Scheme to the Gold State Superannuation Scheme; and
- (ii) notional employer contributions which would have been paid to the Gold State Superannuation Scheme and West State Superannuation Scheme if the Office had made concurrent employer contributions to those Schemes.

Notes to the Financial Statements

for the year ended 30 June 2001

The Superannuation expense does not include payment of pensions to retirees as this does not constitute part of the cost of services provided by the Office in the current year. The total unfunded liability for pensions and transfer benefits assumed by the Treasurer at 30 June 2001 in respect of current employees is $500,614 (1999-00 - $390,626).

(h) Leases

The Office has entered into operating lease arrangements, for buildings through Treasury (Government Property Office) and motor vehicles through the State Supply Commission. The lessors effectively retain all of the risks and benefits incidental to ownership of the items held under the operating leases. Equal instalments of the lease payments are charged to the operating statement over the lease term as this is representative of the pattern of benefits to be derived from the leased property.

(i) Accrued salaries

The accrued salaries suspense account consists of amounts paid annually into a suspense account at Treasury over a period of 10 financial years to largely meet the additional cash outflow in each eleventh year when 27 pays occur in that year instead of the normal 26. No interest is received on this account.

Accrued salaries represents the amount due to staff but is unpaid at the end of the financial year, as the end of the last pay period for that financial year does not coincide with the end of the financial year. Accrued salaries are settled within a few days of the financial year end. The Office considers the carrying amount of accrued salaries to be equivalent to the net fair value.

(j) Payables

Payables, including accruals not yet billed, are recognised when the Office becomes obliged to make future payments as a result of a purchase of assets or services. Payables are generally settled within 30 days.

(k) Resources received free of charge or for nominal value

Resources received free of charge or for nominal value which can be reliably measured are recognised as revenues and as assets or expenses as appropriate at fair value.

(l) Comparative figures

Comparative figures are, where appropriate, reclassified so as to be comparable with the figures presented in the current financial year.

3 Outputs of the Office

Information about the Office's outputs and the expenses and revenues which are reliably attributable to those outputs is set out in the Output Schedule of Expenses and Revenues.

Output 1 – Resolution of complaints

Output

Provides an independent review and complaint resolution process which balances the competing needs and expectations of applicants, agencies and Parliament within legislative requirements.

Output 2 - Freedom of information advice and awareness

Output

Provide objective advice and information about the provisions and operation of the Freedom of Information Act and propose initiatives to enhance administrative efficiency in agencies.

The Ministry of Justice provides overall corporate support in human resources and financial services (refer to note 11 for details of charge).
